Heinrich Popow, Kelly Cartwright and Svetlana Moshkovich all take home London 2012 Paralympic medals

Australian track and field athlete Kelly Cartwright has taken home a gold medal in the Women's Long Jump - F42/44 and has added a silver medal to her tally in the Women's 100m - T42. German sprinter, Heinrich Popow, has claimed two bronze medals in the Men's 4x100m Relay T42/T46 and Men's 200m T42. Russian Svetlana Moshkovich won a bronze medal in the Women's Individual H3 Time Trial. All three athletes, using Ottobock equipment, secured medals on the seventh day of competition.

In addition to manufacturing equipment, Ottobock Healthcare is Official Prosthetic, Orthotic and Wheelchair Technical Service Provider to the 2012 Paralympic Games. Like the services provided by mechanics during a pit-stop in motor racing, members of Ottobock's technical service team are located next to the field of play and are responsible for the repair and maintenance of equipment damaged during competition. On day seven of competition alone, 155 repairs took place in a 6,500 ft<sup>2</sup> workshop in the Paralympic Village and nine other workshops next to the field of play at nine competition venues.

Harry Zenner, Technical Director, Ottobock International Leadership Team at the London 2012 Paralympic Games has been working with Ottobock Healthcare for 30 years and has come out of retirement to provide his technical expertise at the Games.

Quality for life

Last night he was given the honour of presenting medals for the Women's 100m - T42, awarding Ottobock athlete Kelly Cartwright with her silver medal.

“In 2006 I managed the Ottobock workshop at the Winter Paralympic Games in Torino and again at the Beijing 2008 Paralympic Games, but this year I have been awarded with the greatest honour of all, such as presenting Paralympic medals,” said Harry Zenner. “I’ve seen some remarkable things in my time, the opening of a mobile workshop in Haiti after the earthquake in 2010 and spending three weeks there, making 10 below the knee prosthetics in three weeks. The Paralympics however offers new challenges and I thoroughly enjoy the spirit of the Games. Every patient represents a new challenge but the feeling of walking out into the stadium, with 80,000 people cheering as I presented the medals is something I will never forget.”

1,650 Paralympians from 121 of the competing countries have visited an Ottobock workshop to have their equipment repaired by the technical service team. On day seven of competition alone, 127 wheelchairs, 21 prostheses and seven orthoses repairs were made by the technical service team. Ottobock is supporting all 4,200 competing athletes with a team of 80 expert prosthetists, orthotists and wheelchair technicians, including 12 welders, who have all volunteered their services. The team of technicians come from 18 countries and speak 14 languages.

Ottobock has been a partner to the Paralympic Games providing technical service since the Seoul 1988 Paralympic Games, and has completed approximately 10,000 repairs for athletes during Paralympic competition since then. Records for most repairs completed in a single Games were set at the Beijing 2008 Paralympic Games where technicians worked more than 10,000 hours completing 2,188 repairs.

Technical service by the numbers:

	Day 7	Total to date
